CASE STUDY HIGH WEST DISPENSARY

DENVER, CO / JULY 2021

situation

In July of 2021 High West Dispensary was entering the competitive cannabis scene in Denver, CO and needed a turn-key retail space that would turn heads. Entrusting the vision to dispensary design maven, Megan Stone (High Road Design Studio), and the build-out to Britten WoodWorks, High West was looking for a full millwork package that would make a mark in the Mile High City solution

Frequent design-fabrication partners, High Road handed off the vision for WoodWorks to create. Stone's design called for blonde wood encased in metalwork, brightly lit glass shelving, and an impressive wood-paneled industrial installation suspended from the ceiling. An established 360 fabricator familiar with wood, metal, glass and graphics, WoodWorks manufactured the casework, shelving, and desktops to exact design specs. The result—a stunning replica of the High Road's render made a reality in High West's retail space.

impact

Fostering close relationships with designers like High Road Design, WoodWorks convert modern and exciting concepts into exacting millwork realities. "Britten did a great job bringing the vision for High West's redesigned retail space to life," said Megan Stone, founder and creative director of High Road Design Studios, "They made sure the integrity of the design made it from renderings to reality without skipping a beat, and handled the post-installation follow ups with courtesy and concern."
